NEW MEXICO NEWS SUMMARY

New Source of Hard Wood.

The pine is the missing link of the tree family. Restricted to a single valley, that of the Rio Grande, in Mexico and Texas this tree with its small crooked trunk twisting with thorns is little known to the outside world. It is popularly supposed to bear no leaves, flowers or fruit, but it really bears all three.

The minute leaves are scale-like, the flowers very small and the fruit is a tiny berry. It is the only known representative of its family in all the world.

It is not known that the pine ever grows anywhere outside of the valley of the Rio Grande, or that it ever had relatives close enough to claim kinship. Some trees now nearly extinct, had wide range in past ages, the big trees of California, for example, which grew all the way to the Arctic ocean. But the pine, so far as is known, has always lived in one place and has always been the same dwarved, crooked tree that it now is.

Except as fuel it has not been put to any use. Thousands of cords might be cut in the valley of the Rio Grande, in Mexico and Texas. Of late, however, the growing scarcity of hardwood has called attention to the despised pine tree as a possible substitute for some of the more popular woods; and the result is a surprise to those who thought the wood had no commercial value. Clarence A. Miller, canon at Matamoras, Mexico, has called the attention of this government to the good qualities claimed for it.

The wood sinks in water. In color it ranges from brown to black. It is extremely high and beautiful polish, fitting it to raise the price of such expensive woods as ebony and rosewood for small pieces of timber can be obtained from them. Few trunks exceed seven feet in length and eight inches in diameter. The wood is said to be admirably suited for the bases of musical instruments, jewel boxes and other bureau cabinets, chess-men, checkers, paper knives, knife and other small turners, inlaid work and boxes for almost all purposes for which costly foreign woods, in small pieces, are now used.

Many of the trees whose woods are familiar in the lumber markets belong to large families. There are called species of the pine family and they are scattered all over the northern hemisphere. The beech and the oak, for instance, have even more members than there are wide species.

The pine has over 600,000,000,000 cubic feet in the earth, while the maple, which is the most valuable, is said to have more than 300,000. Here the pines are felling off site, battle alone on the deserts of Texas and Mexico without a relative in the world.

Health Seeker Murdered.

An Albuquerque dispatch of June 22nd says: "After Ross, a young health seeker from St. Louis, who started with a companion on an arduous trip from Roswell to this city, was found dead forty-five miles east of Roswell, Sunday, with fatal stab wounds in his body, the ground and bushes around being studded with blood, and the locality showing traces of a terrible struggle."

Ross left Roswell a few days ago with a man named Theodore King, who is missing and who is believed to have murdered his companion. The authorities are on the lookout for King, but it is not believed he will return to this place.

The scene of the killing was a lonely spot in the mountains. Ross had spent several months in Roswell before starting on the trip.

Roswell Wool Market.

A Roswell dispatch says: "One of the greatest centers of eastern New Mexico is wool. This season Roswell is the principal marketing place for the wool of this section, which to date has totalled almost 300,000 pounds. Large sums of the largest eastern wool buying firms have their headquarters and a result there have located here some important warehouses and the storage premises. While a large portion of the wool being marketed in Roswell this season has already been shipped to the east, more than half of it is still here, or is yet to be brought in from the big ranches and can be seen in the wool houses."

Parish Priest Robbed.

Father Haertman, parish priest at Santa Cruz, north of Santa Fe, last night was robbed of $1000 in cash which he kept in a strong chest, says a Santa Fe dispatch of June 25th.

Suspicion fell upon a young man, a health seeker whose name is unknown but who has disappeared. He drove during the trade overland to Santa Fe and took a train for El Paso. He told the layman, John Stafford, of Espanola, a pitiful but untrue story that he was penniless and that his master was a corpse at St. Vincent's seminary here and thus induced Stafford to make no charge for the service.

Arrested for Valdez Murder.

An Albuquerque dispatch of June 22nd says: "Adolfo Gurule and Antonio Gonzales, charged with the murder of Juan Valdez at Cabazon, San Miguel county, at midnight May 11th, were brought here tonight and are being swerved in jail."

They are charged with entering the house of Valdez and deliberately cutting off his head with an axe before the horrified gaze of his two little sons.

The latter have also been brought here and the prisoners will have a hearing before Judge Abbott in the District Court in two or three days.

The boys positively identify Gurule and also incriminate another man, a prominent resident and former official of San Miguel county, whose name has not been given out. His arrest is expected soon. It is said that Gurule, who is fifty-eight years old, had been refused by a young woman who consented to become the wife of Valdez, who was thirty-five, and that Gurule was also jealous of Valdez because the latter had been appointed to succeed him as school director.

The body of Valdez was dragged away and hidden in an arroyo. The prisoners were released on a nominal bond by a justice of the peace at Cabazon, but were arrested again by mounted police. Cabazon is the center of a wild and lawless section where bandits and desperadoes are frequent occurrences and the authorities say they are determined to break up these conditions.

Mrs Otero Marries Soldier.

A Santa Fe dispatch of June 25th says: "Miss Adeline Burgess Otero was married today at the cathedral in Santa Fe, to First Lieutenant R. D. Warren, Fifth cavalry, stationed at Fort Wingate."

The bride belongs to one of the leading and oldest families of the territory. The couple will spend the honeymoon at the Field cottage on the Rio Pecos, and from there will go to Fort Wingate.

Stockman Stabbed at Roswell.

A Roswell dispatch of June 22nd says: "Henry N. Boyce, of Channing, Texas, half-owner of the Black Cattle Company and manager of the immense P. T. outfit, was seriously stabbed in the breast, it is alleged by Oscar Harbert, after an altercation at Riverside stock yards today. Boyce was brought here in an automobile and given medical attention. Barring possibility of bad person or other complication, he will likely recover."

It is alleged that Harbert was trying to force a horse unmercifully and when ordered to cease began cursing Boyce, who struck him in the face with his fist and with a quiet Harbert, it is said, then drew a knife and stabbed Boyce. Harbert was brought here late this afternoon and placed in jail without bond, awaiting the result of the injured man's wound. After being stabbed, Boyce wrenched the knife away from Harbert and in so doing broke his own little finger.

Murdered Man's Body Found.

A Carlsbad dispatch says that Sheriff Lanes and posse have found the dismembered body of J. C. Freeman, a houseman and trapper, who mysteriously disappeared some months ago. The body was found in a lonely canon fifty miles northwest of Carlsbad with a bullet hole through the head, the ball having entered at the base of the brain.

Some weeks before he disappeared, Freeman told his friends that someone was after him and he expected to be killed soon.

No clue to the murderer has been found. Freeman had been dead at least three months.
